CONFERENCE OVERVIEW

Business value and social impact have become increasingly important in today's changing local and global contexts. While businesses traditionally focused on financial gains, modern businesses are now expected to operate with a broader sense of responsibility that encompasses not only financial value but also social value. This shift is driven by a growing awareness of social and environmental issues and the importance of creating a sustainable future for all. However, the creation of business value and social impact is challenged by the fast-changing business environments. The unprecedented global changes such as the Covid-19 pandemic, geopolitical tensions, climate change, financial crisis, and revolutionary technological development have posed both threats and opportunities to internationally operating firms. Therefore, it's critical to develop effective strategies, governance, and structures to deal with the risks and opportunities in changing local and global contexts.

The purpose of this conference is to provide a platform for scholarly discourse on the theme of "Business Value and Social Impact in Changing Local and Global Contexts". We welcome scholars and practitioners from around the world to join us in person, in Providence Rhode Island, during the peak of the beautiful autumn season, to discuss our theme topic and other issues relating to international business, which may include but are not limited to the following:

- Firm strategies in dealing with global changes
- The impact of global disruptions on firm value
- Sustainability and corporate social responsibility
- Environmental and climate change impact mitigation
- Geopolitical risk and firm risk management
- Equity, diversity, and inclusion in global business
- Green innovation and renewable energy
- International entrepreneurship and social values
- Governance of MNEs in a changing world
- Digitization, blockchain, and supply chain management
- Employee development and workplace safety
- Fintech and international finance
- Artificial intelligence and digital innovation
- Digital marketing and E-commerce
- Social sustainability in emerging markets
- International business pedagogy and experiential education

We emphasize that while we are particularly interested in proposal abstracts (200-250 words) on the conference theme, we welcome submissions on any international business topic within the broader global business research agenda.

CONFERENCE CITY AND HOST INSTITUTION

The Conference City: Providence, Rhode Island is a historic city that is home to eight college campuses and a vibrant arts and cultural scene. There are a variety of things to do and see in the city – from checking out the collection of stores or thriving music scene on Thayer Street, to experiencing the magic of WaterFire, to catching a Broadway show at the Providence Performing Arts Center. The Providence area is home to many companies, including CVS Health, Textron, Amica Mutual Insurance, FM Global, Citizens Financial Group, and Hasbro. And while Rhode Island, or the “Ocean State,” may be the smallest, it has a lot to offer visitors, with its more than 400 miles of pristine coastline, one of the nation’s largest concentrations of historical landmarks, and some of the most acclaimed dining establishments in the country. Additional information about Rhode Island can be found at <http://www.visitrhodeisland.com>.

Providence College, this year’s host institution, is located just five minutes from downtown Providence and is easily accessible by train, car, or rideshare from Providence’s T.F. Green Airport or Boston’s Logan Airport. Founded in 1917, Providence College is a primarily undergraduate Catholic and Dominican liberal arts higher education institution, ranked #1 by U.S. News & World Report in the “Regional University – North” category. This year’s host school, the AACSB-accredited Providence College School of Business (PCSB), is home to four undergraduate programs – accountancy, finance, management, and marketing – and two graduate programs – an MBA program and a master’s in business analytics program. The PCSB’s Undergraduate Program has placed in the Top 50 in the Poets & Quants’ ranking for the last four years, climbing to #37 for 2023, and the PC MBA Program is ranked a Top 100 part-time program by U.S. News & World Report.
